

Zudugarai Traditional Method Sparkling Wine

Txakoli Zudugarai has developed a project to create new types of quality wines within the framework of the DO Getariako Txakolina, opening new business lines parallel to the traditional txakoli market and drawing a profitable and competitive horizon with the aim of opening or consolidating new markets.

One of the projects focuses on launching the winery's first sparkling wine. The project thus investigates the production of a quality sparkling wine using the traditional method applied to a base wine made from the indigenous Hondarrabi Zuri variety, which is traditionally used to produce txakoli. It also seeks to explore and understand the aromatic potential and aging capacity of this native variety. Zudugarai's goal is to develop a quality sparkling wine with its own personality, aimed at consumers seeking quality, originality, and innovation.

Quality Sparkling Wine from Getaria, made according to the traditional method, from the hand-harvested and selected indigenous Hondarrabi Zuri (80%) and Hondarrabi Beltza (20%) grapes selected from our best vineyard in Zudugarai. With a slightly golden yellow color and greenish reflections, the Zudugarai 2021 sparkling wine presents a fine bubble that rises in abundant rosaries, forming a beautiful and persistent crown as a result of a second fermentation in bottle at very low temperatures.

Tasting Notes: A complex nose, where citrus aromas blend with the subtlety of fresh grass and the minerality imparted by the Aia soils to the Hondarrabi Zuri & Beltza varieties, all surrounded by a honeyed background. The 26 months of aging on the lees give it a delicate bakery note that appears in the background. Balanced and pleasant acidity, a result of its aging and the combination of varieties. On the palate, it offers remarkable structure and fruitiness. Its superb effervescence caresses the palate, leaving it with a great creaminess. Smooth, fresh, persistent, and structured, the palate is rich, fresh, and structured with a saline vitality. It has a long, elegant, and delicate finish.
